Welshpool Town Planning

Thank you to everyone who took part in our open house at the Rural Transaction Centre where all of the 'Have Your Say' ideas were displayed. Residents were invited to respond to those ideas that were of interest or priority to them. The response was terrific with many residents from the wider community taking part and sharing their thoughts and pointing out their future wishes.

The next step for the WAFF Group will be to correlate these ideas into order of highest demand and begin the process of writing up the new Community Plan.

R U Ok? Day

Last Thursday 8th September, we celebrated R U OK? Day with a check in with our local community. Students cooked up some cookies and delivered the treats with some mindfulness colouring in. It was lovely to be back in the community and it was nice to see the relationships the students have with our community. Hopefully the visits brightened everyone's day!

On behalf of the shops in Welshpool we would like to thank the students of Welshpool & District Primary School for being so kind and thoughtful checking in on us. We were all delighted to see you and thank you for our lovely cookies and colouring in.

Be sure to always check in with family, friends and anyone in your community and ask the question, R U OK?

Welshpool Basketball Association

We are back and off to a great start for the season.

Thank you to the many new committee members who have stepped in to help our club continue to thrive. Thank you also to the extra helpers on the nights with scoring, canteen and general jobs to be done.

Our Wednesdays are very exciting with lots of minis taking the court by storm. They have so much fun playing and I think the parents have just as much fun watching and cheering them on. We also have our juniors, many of whom have moved up a level and are playing incredibly well.

Thursday nights we have our intermediates and seniors competition, it's great to see many new faces to our competition as well as those returning players.

Port Welshpool and District Maritime Museum

Once upon a time, Port Welshpool was a thriving fishing port with a large fleet of boats of all sizes to its credit to which they called home. There was a school where generations of families proudly learnt their ABC up to Grade 6. Then it was off to Foster High School for further education, the bus that was responsible for getting these students to Foster, started early mornings at the port. For me it was Mr. Bown at the wheel. No seat belts and three to a seat. We were lucky we were first on so we picked the best seats. With F.H.S out the way, when you had reached leaving age and were lucky enough to have a job, the next chapter of your life started.

The Port back then had a hall where many an occasion was celebrated. Meetings of all descriptions were held in this hall. Located at the end of Turnbull St. Situated next to where the Tennis Court now proudly showing off the hard work of a few dedicated locals. The Tennis Court once boasted a very strong Tennis Club and competed in the local comps. Sadly the hall burnt down and was never rebuilt, so now thanks to the failure of the Sea Cat, we still have a great building for all occasions. There was never a church as such in the town. This meant another use for the hall; clergy men of different denominations held services there.

In Townsend Street there was a house for the Head Master of the School.

Next door in the same street was the house for the Fisheries and Games Inspector.

On the corner of Turnbull and Lewis Streets, a knife factory of world renown clattered away. Many households are still using tools made by the proprietor, Peter Peterson.

In Lewis Street the Corner Inlet Garage operated, being well used by all. Also in Lewis Street down towards the Big Pier [as it was then known] was the Ports and Harbour Masters House.

The Harbour Master was a very important position, overseeing workers who made sure all the navigation lights were working, the channel dredged and the slipway safe. Everything had to be shipshape not only for local boats but many others from neighbouring ports who used our slipway or visiting boats needing a safe haven for the night from bad weather or to refuel and get supplies. A visit to the Welshpool pub was very welcome after many days at sea.

We had the Post Office/Newsagents which also saw to your banking needs. There has never been a mail or paper delivery to your homes but in a port like this, it was not needed as a highlight of the day for most was gathering outside the Post Office and catching up with others to discuss the fishing, weather or the goings on in the town while the mail was being sorted after it being collected from Welshpool. At the shed across from the P.O. at the start of the "little jetty", many a man spent many hours in the sun reading the daily news or just watching the world go by and having a snooze as they soaked up the vitamin D. Another popular spot to gather for a chat.

The General Store next to P.O. as the name says was where you could buy most things. BUT...No fish and chips. You could open an account, book up your household needs and pay at the end of the month. Bills being paid relied on the catch so this was the way most operated thanks to the proprietor of the G/Store.

The Caravan Park [now known as the Long Jetty C/P] was and is where many a venturer spent many a happy holiday, along with the sand flies. Sand flies or not they returned year after year for the experience of the seaside and all it had to offer. The caravan park also had a kiosk that fronted the beach, where you could buy an ice cream, or get hot water for the thermos and many other goodies to help with an enjoyable day beside the seaside... The whole area was very involved in sport.

The home ground for the Port Cricket Team was played on a pitch in the Caravan Park and the lawn bowls has been and still is happily enjoyed in an area behind the Long Jetty Caravan Park. Back in the middle of the town in Townsend Street many a holiday was enjoyed at one of the three holiday units. "The Rest", [I believe to be the first] near the corner of Turnbull Street. The two others were situated across the road behind the now Museum. They went down the hill through to Stewart Street.

At the end of Townsend Street was known as the Creek, where many a small boat was moored or beached to clean. Thanks to local fisherman in later years improvements were made to the area. So as we cast the memory back through the ages to what was, we now see the port as a different place. Once a place where generations of family's called home and some still do. While now we watch as a new demographic are building a nest to have a happy retirement and watch the progress.

"Once upon a time"; is a snap shot on Port Welshpool as it once was?

To reminisce and update the records a "History Gathering Day" was held on the 31st of August 2022. This day was decided while the museum is closed and going through a new stage of her life, we wanted to stay connected to the community.

Many gathered at the Port Welshpool Ferry Terminal after a call from the Committee of the Port Welshpool Maritime Museum to help with updating the history of the Port. Cheryl Glowrey introduced the day and with photos on display local photographer, Keith Haycroft was on the ready to copy photos proudly shared. Ellen Ellis put pen to paper so important stories of the time could be documented.

The display boards and table of photos helped to jolt many memories and stories were added or friends recognised. Happy memories were discussed over a cuppa and cake.

The Museum Committee would like to thank everyone who attended or gave their apologies, and say to everyone spread the word as we plan to have many more.

The support from the Port Welshpool Working Group was greatly appreciated and to each and every one who either attended or helped with the kitchen, we say a big "Thank You"

The next gathering will be at the Museum for an open day; no date has been set as yet as there is a bit of housekeeping still to be completed.
